Iris Garden

Phone — SKyline 3-3432

Davis, California

We wish to thank all our customers and new friends who made our third year, as a commercial grower, such a success. We will try each succeeding year to maintain a better and higher standard of growing quality rhizomes.

How do we propose to do this? We have discontinued many of the older varieties because there is no cheap labor and those we get just don't care to work in Iris gardens at any price. We, therefore, are growing only a few of the choicest varieties and will grow them in such a manner that the customer, both old and new, will be more than satisfied.

Each year we try to add a number of new varieties. Last season we added the following: PHOEBUS APOLLO, PRIVATEER, GRACE B, BOLD ADVENTURE, CONQUEROR, PRETTY PINK, DEEP BLACK, CELESTIA, CARMELLA, GOLDEN BLAZE, CRINKLED RIBBON, HALOLIGHT, HARBOR BLUE, MOULIN ROUGE, CASINO, EASTMONT, IRMA MELROSE, SWAN BALLET, PLUMED DELIGHT, QUEEN'S LACE, RUFFLED APACHE, TENSLEEP, PRAIRIE JEWEL and SAFARI. Some of these will find their way into the following pages. Those that do not, are being withheld to increase stock.

Our display garden is fast becoming a Mecca for Iris fanciers and shutterbugs. Everyone is welcome, especially at blooming time which is expected around the third week of April.

We hope to be seein' you.

Alice & Lyn Hoffman

We guarantee all plants to be true to name free from pests, and in good condition when they reach you. If for any reason you are not completely satisfied, please write us at once. Your satisfaction is our aim.

The growth and survival of healthy Iris stock is dependent very largely upon the care given and upon local soil and weather conditions — things of which we have no control.

Iris Protection - Where & When!

Insect and Fungus spring cleanup is very valuable and should be done earlier in the Southern and West Coast States. This can be the most important phase of Iris gardening because so much more can be accomplished at this time, with so little effort and spray material. All dead leaves should be stripped from the rhizomes and grass shears used to trim partially dead leaves back to live, green growth. This will remove from the Iris garden certain leaf spot spores and Iris Borer eggs laid last fall by the Iris Borer moth.

The Iris plants should be thoroughly drenched and the soil saturated with the solution of CARCO-X mixed 1-100 which serves as a double barreled control for leaf spot, iris borers, soft rot and crown rot. The solution destroys certain insect and iris borer eggs and most of the spores of leaf spot fungus. Saturating the soil protects your plants from the probable causes of soft rot.

SOFT ROT:

Soft Rot is detected by an iris plant showing a brown leaf or failing to make normal growth. To treat, remove the dirt from over and around the rhizome and scrape out the rot with an old spoon, saturate the rhizome and soil around it with CARCO-X solution 1-200 and leave exposed to the air and sun. Next day the iris rhizome will be dry as a board and continue to grow. CARCO-X solution is made by mixing one tablespoonful of CARCO-X in three quarts of water. It is easy to mix, easy to use and non-poisonous. It can be left in the garden with no danger of poisoning birds and animals.

IRIS BORER:

Moths of the Iris Borer lay their eggs in the fold of the dead leaves in the late summer or fall, so late in the fall or sometime very early in the spring, clean up all the dead leaves and burn them. Then in the spring after the Iris beds have been cleaned, spray with the 1-100 solution of CARCO-X every two weeks during the egg hatching. If infested in late summer because of no previous properly timed treatment, we suggest pouring a solution of CARCO-X 1-100 on the rhizome, making a ditch around the rhizome so the solution can be soaked into this ditch and will soak around and under the rhizome.

MUSTARD SEED FUNGUS:

A condition where one leaf after another develops a slick, slimy area extending upward two or three inches from the rhizome. It has been very hard to control and plants affected gradually become defoliated until only one to three leaves remain upright. Prostrate green leaves on the ground are the first indication. Iris growers report that Mustard Seed Fungus in certain sections of the country is a big problem, and for that you will drench your plant with the 1-200 solution (1 teaspoon CARCO-X to 1 quart of water) and save your plant. Mustard Seed Fungus also affects many other plants such as Plantain Lilies. This treatment is similar to that used on rhizomes having Soft Rot.

WINTER PROTECTION:

CARCO-X is an ovacide as well as a fungicide and excellent results can be obtained by dormant spraying in late fall. Insects winter over in the litter in a perennial garden. As soon as the Iris garden is raked clean, cultivate lightly, then spray or sprinkle it, thoroughly wetting the soil as well as the plants, with a 1-100 solution. A sprinkling can is very satisfactory on small gardens and much quicker for the job. This treatment destroys the eggs as well as the insects at a time when they are easiest to kill.

Certain Iris growers state that after dormant or late fall spraying it is a good practice to hoe the dirt up over the rhizomes in the late fall similar to hilling up potatoes, and in the spring hoe the dirt away from the rhizomes until the ground is level once more. This protects against winter injury and is almost equal to covering with hay. After the ground is frozen, cover with hay, tucking the hay up around the plants more than over them.

Fertilizer cannot do its best work for you unless soil insects and fungus are controlled. Many gardeners have blamed fertilizer for being of no or little value and it was not the fault of the fertilizer at all.

CARCO-X is an emulsifiable liquid concentrate that has year-round uses.

Postpaid prices of CARCO-X are: 1/2 Pints, $1.00; Pints, $1.85; Quarts, $3.00; Gallons, $8.75. Prices of CARCO-X are: Pints, $1.85; Quarts, $3.00; Gallons, $8.75.
